At A Glimpse

Puerto Galera is a soothing vision of shimmering seas surrounded by lush mountains. It is considered one of the most beautiful and developed beach resort community in the country. Starting from “backyard tourism” wherein local residents accept local and foreign tourist as stay-in guest, tourism in Puerto Galera has flourished. In the course of time, several hotels, resorts, inns and restaurants have mushroomed within the area. Upon arrival in Puerto Galera, visitors board any of the waiting bancas (outrigger boat) that ferry passengers across the surrounding waters and into the various resorts dotting the coastline. Jeepneys to the inland hamlets of Sabang, Small and Big La Laguna, White Beach and Talipanan Point likewise traverse hilly, tree-lined routes that offer a sweeping view of the island’s less aquatic, but equally tropical side.

There are a thousand things one can do in Puerto Galera. Landlubbers can pitch tents, light bonfires, play volleyball, toss a Frisbee, go beach-hopping, watch the sunset, gaze at the stars, hike, go rock climbing, carom off on a motorcycle, discover Oriental Mindoro’s other tourist spots or simply live it up. The Puerto Galera chapter of the Hash House Harriers – a club that started 50 years ago in Kuala Lumpur and which was introduced to the Philippines in the early 90’s – regularly holds “runs”: rowdy drinking sprees that have participants following two trails, one of which leads no where. When a runner follows the wrong track, he has to go back, downing bottles of beer in the process. What follows is a night of revelry no doubt spurred by the free flowing booze.

But water is certainly the main attraction of the island. Crystal clear and shimmering especially during the hot summer months, the sea framing Puerto Galera is ideal for swimming, sailing, surfing, snorkeling and scuba diving. In fact one doesn’t have to go by boat to get to a dive site. Within a kilometer from the coast, schools of Moorish idols, trumpet fish, frog fish, lion fish and leaf fish weave in and out of thriving corals and sea anemones while species of starfish – from the speckled red-and-white to the neon-blue Pacific-rest on the sandy floor.

Gradually sloping beaches – with the terrain ranging from powder white sand to grainy dark sand to smooth stones to rough coral rubble – comprise a large chunk of the island’s 25,247 hectares. And while the department of tourism’s last count pegs the number of resorts at 63, pockets of isolated and virtually “resort-less” coves and beaches are tucked between massive rock formations. Then, as now water was what shaped Puerto Galera. As early as the 10th century, Chinese, Indonesians and Malay merchants were already doing business with locals in what is now known as Mindoro, the tiny strip of land which the Chinese called “Mai” and which lay directly in the Asia-Pacific trade route. In route to Manila in 1570, a Spanish expedition led by Martin de Goiti and Juan de Salcedo stumbled upon the resource-rich island and christened the entire province Mindoro after the harbor at Minolo. Mindoro was later divided into the provinces of Oriental Mindoro and Occidental Mindoro.

At the height of the raids mounted by Moro pirates in the 17th century. Mindoro was a defensive bastion, with fortresses in the nearby towns of Calapan and Mamburao. Puerto Galera, the northernmost strip so named because it served as a port for Spanish galleys, became the capital. Here, the Spanish found safe anchorage and put up dock-repair facilities for the galleons that plied the Manila-Acapulco route. The island’s generally calm waters, however, belied a tumultuous streak, and once in a while giant waves would crush galleons and marauding vessels. Coins, jars, lamps, swords and other artifacts salvaged from shipwrecks and sunken vessels are displayed at the Puerto Galera Museum and at Capt’n Greggs in Sabang, lending credence to the island’s colorful history.

Today, foreigners continue to be part of Puerto Galera. They have been flocking since the late 70’s making it one of the country’s foremost tourist destinations. Many, for whom the lure of the tropics proved too strong, have stayed on triggering a real-estate boom in the process and growing expatriate community.

Outside of minor glitches, Puerto Galera is a tropical paradise that is both rustic and thriving. By day it echoes with the soft breeze and the pounding waves. At night, it comes to life with heady laughter and the clink of wine and glasses, only to segue one again to the barest whisper of the elements.

Basic Facts & Statistics

Puerto Galera, dubbed as the Pearl of Mindoro, is a beach resort town located on the north shore of Mindoro Island, 130 kilometers south of Manila, and 14 nautical miles from Batangas City. It comprises of 12 coastal districts (barangays) and one mountain district scattered over an area of 23,247 hectares, bordered on the north by Verde Island, on the south by Baco and Malasimbo mountains, on the northeast by the town of San Teodoro, and on the northwest by the province of Mindoro Occidental. Its natural seawall, exciting dive sites, lush mountains and pristine beaches make Puerto Galera one of the Philippines' top travel destinations.

Topography - The terrain is rugged with sometimes dense jungle, an irregular coastline with crystal clear waters and white sand beaches, a natural harbor which serves as an all-weather anchorage for all types of sea vessels.

Climate - March to May are hot and dry; rains and typhoons abound from June to October; November to February are pleasantly cool and dry. Peak tourist season is from December up to May.

Accommodation - Numerous, mostly family-run cottages and hotel rooms of all categories are available. The types of accommodation range from simple beach huts, made of bamboo and rattan, to comfortable luxury bungalows with kitchen facilities. Nearly all accommodations are quoted for double occupancy and range from 700 to 1,000 pesos for simple beach huts with porch and from 50 to 80 US dollars for suite rooms in high-end resorts. Discounts are commonly given for extended stays and depend largely on the visitors' bargaining ability. During the low season, from June to October, rates are about 20 percent lower than quoted above. Beachfront accommodations are generally more expensive than those further inland.

Water - All resorts have running water. However, bottled mineral water (widely available) is recommended for drinking. Mindoro Spring's bottled mineral water is the preferred choice.

Food - Most resorts have restaurants. Native

as well as international cuisine is served in a variety of restaurants, along with a wide selection of fine wines, imported and local spirits. Needless to mention, seafood is the best choice here.

Watersports - The waters around Puerto Galera are rich in corals and manifold marine life. The best diving sites are located around Sabang, Small and Big Lalaguna, and on the northcoast of Medio Island. The latter, known to world scientists because of its treasures of botanical and zoological specimens, abounds with thousands of terrestrial and marine plants. Fully-equipped, modern training facilities for all levels of diving are available. At most beaches, there are surfboards, sailing boats, kayaks, jet skis, dive masks, snorkels and fins for rent.

Shopping - Souvenir textiles and RTW are sold in stalls along the pier, in boutiques in Poblacion and by street vendors. Handicraft particularly marble novelties, rattan and coconut products can also be purchased. Fresh fruits and fish can be bought at the public market in Poblacion.

Postal Service - The post office is located in downtown Poblacion. Some beach resorts take care of their guests' mail for a small charge.

Communications - National and International DDD (Direct Distance Dialling) can be made on numerous call stations using CATSI-PLDT or Globelines telephone. Cell sites abound in Puerto Galera providing maximum coverage and strong signal for subscribers of Globe, Smart and Sun Cellular.

Currency - It is advisable to take a sufficient supply of peso since the exchange rates offered by resorts are usually 10 percent below the rates in Manila. Cash, checks and tickets and other valuables should be deposited with the resort management against a receipt.

Medical Care - There are several medical centers in Puerto Galera. Serious ailments or injuries should be treated in Batangas City or in Calapan.

Electricity - Since power failures occur frequently many beach resorts and hotels are equipped with electric generators. The voltage is 220 volts.

CORAL COVE RESORT
Puerto Galera, Mindoro, Philippines

Memories of Coral Cove Diving

"...A warm welcome...
Happy days on tranquil beaches...
Lively nights among friendly people.
Lovely corals, fantastic diving
Top class PADI dive instructors..."

Happy memories at forgettable prices

Coral Cove is located just three hours by the road from Manila and an hour by boat across the Batangas channel to Mindoro Island.

Private transportation from Manila can be arranged. Public bus and ferry services are also available.

Secure parking is available at Batangas for guests with cars.

Fully qualified PADI instructors will introduce you to the world of SCUBA, using the most up-to-date equipment
from our well equipped dive shop.

Spectacular reefs, shark caves, coral gardens, drift dives, drop offs, old and newer wrecks and crystal clear water make Puerto Galera the best known diving center in the Philippines and Coral Cove is right at the heart of it all.

Our own dive boats will take you to more than 25 dive sites located within a few minutes from resort. Whether you are a novice or an expert, don't forget your Certificates and we can guarantee you a great diving holiday.
